Elon Musk Is The World Sex Predator

Shocking messages to 'baby mama' Ashley St. Clair revealed

By JOE HUTCHISON

View Comments

Text messages between Elon Musk and his new baby mama Ashley St. Clair have been revealed after the MAGA influencer filed a lawsuit against the DOGE chief.
St. Clair, 26, filed a petition in New York on Friday asking for total custody of her son, who goes by R.S.C. in the court docs, and for Musk, 53, to take a paternity test.

As part of the exhibits for the paternity petition, the conservative firebrand shared a picture of Musk holding her son, who was born in September of last year.
Alleged text messages from after the child's birth were also added in the suit, which includes one from the day the boy was born.

St. Clair had sent Musk a picture of her clutching the newborn in the delivery room.

'All well?' Musk replied. To which, she responded 'He is perfect.' Musk replied: 'I look forward to seeing you and him this weekend.'

In another, St. Clair sent him a selfie of her and a friend, to which Musk replied: 'Hi cutie.' She then texted him back, saying: 'Hi, see u soon.'

The Tesla boss and 'First Buddy' followed up with a shocking reply: 'I want to knock you up again'.

+12

View gallery

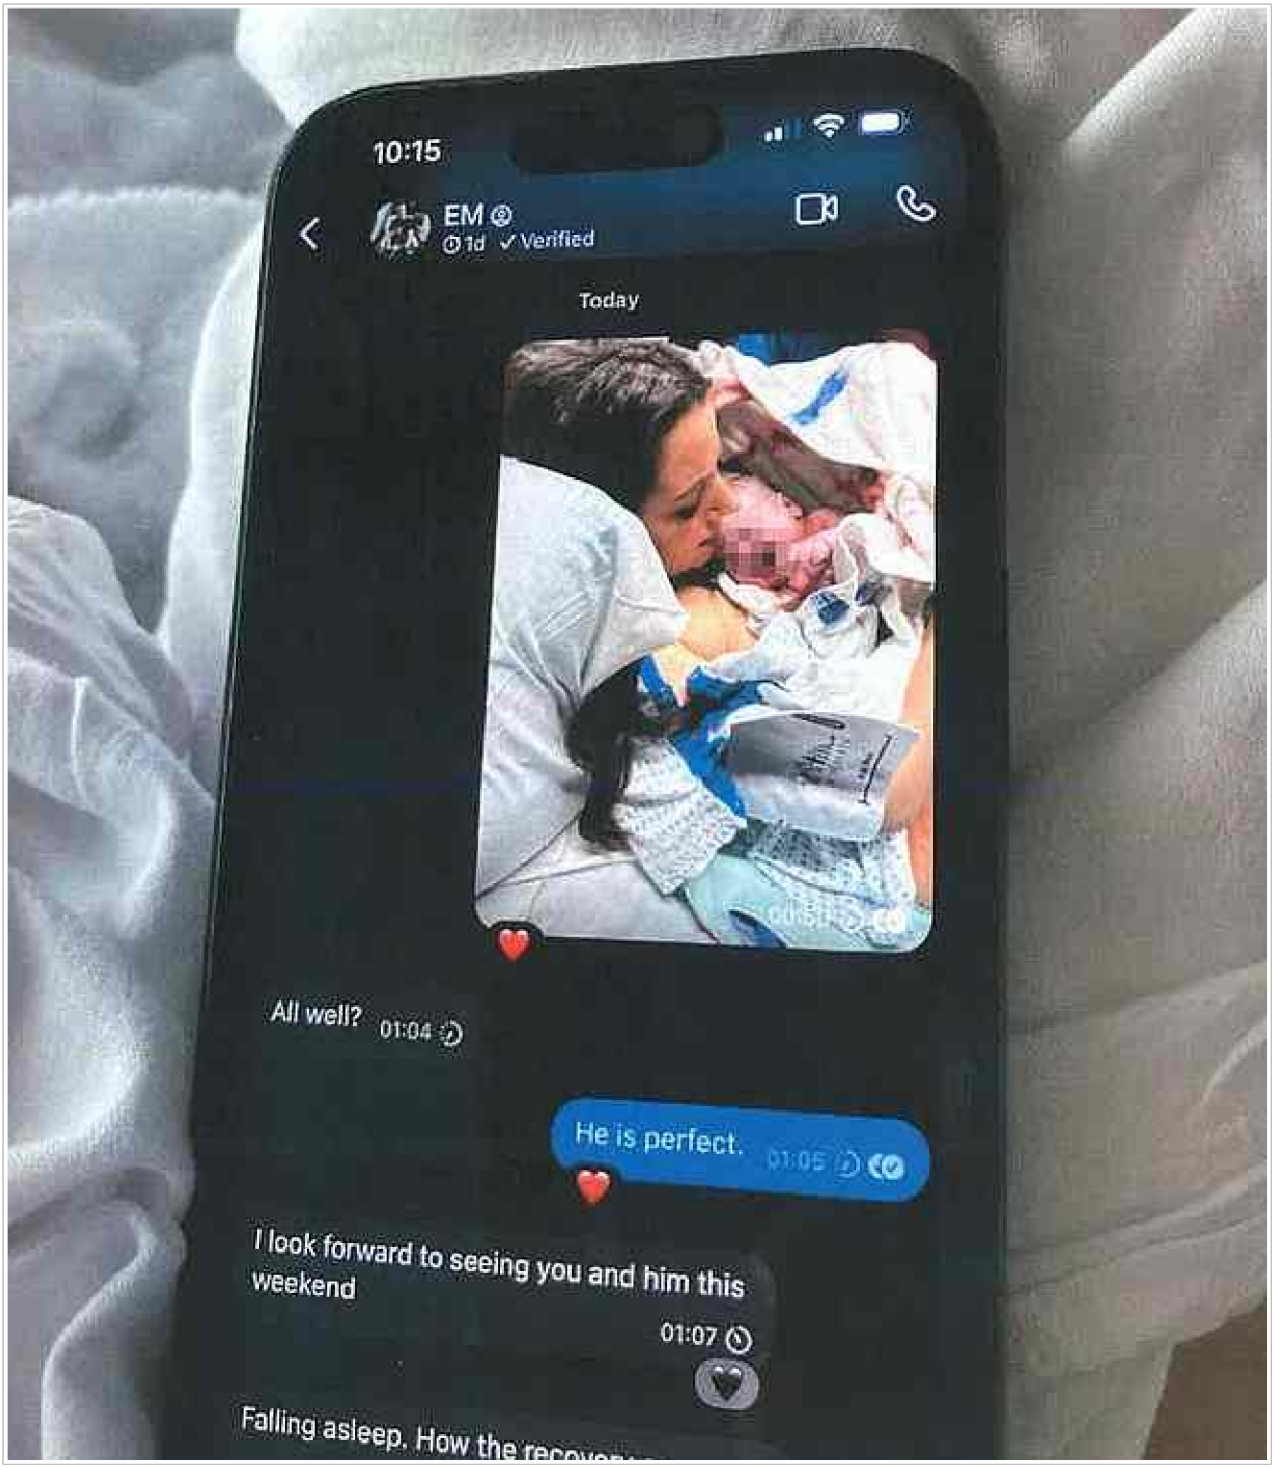

As part of the exhibits for the paternity petition, the conservative firebrand shared a picture of Musk holding her son, who was born in September of last year

+12

View gallery

St. Clair, seen here, filed a petition in New York on Friday asking for total custody of her son, who goes by R.S.C. in the court docs, and for Musk, 53, to take a paternity test

+12

View gallery

St. Clair had sent Musk a picture of her clutching the newborn in hospital seemingly on the day he was born

TRENDING

Elon Musk's warning for federal workers refusing to return to office

11.3k viewing now

Elon Musk reveals the reason behind bombshell email to federal workers

38.2k viewing now

Elon Musk hits back as he shares baby mama's 'pregnancy plot'

17.3k viewing now

Other messages show Musk talking about a credible death threat on his life, saying he was '#2 after Trump for assassination'.

He told her: 'Wake up. This is not the time for sentiment at the expense of safety. If I make a mistake on security [REDACTED] will never know his father.'

St. Clair responded saying: 'That's why the father spot on his birth certificate is blank right, E. Any he has my last name.'

Musk added: 'Necessary for now. Only the paranoid survive' before St. Clair responded saying that 'incredible discretion' had been used and would continue to be.

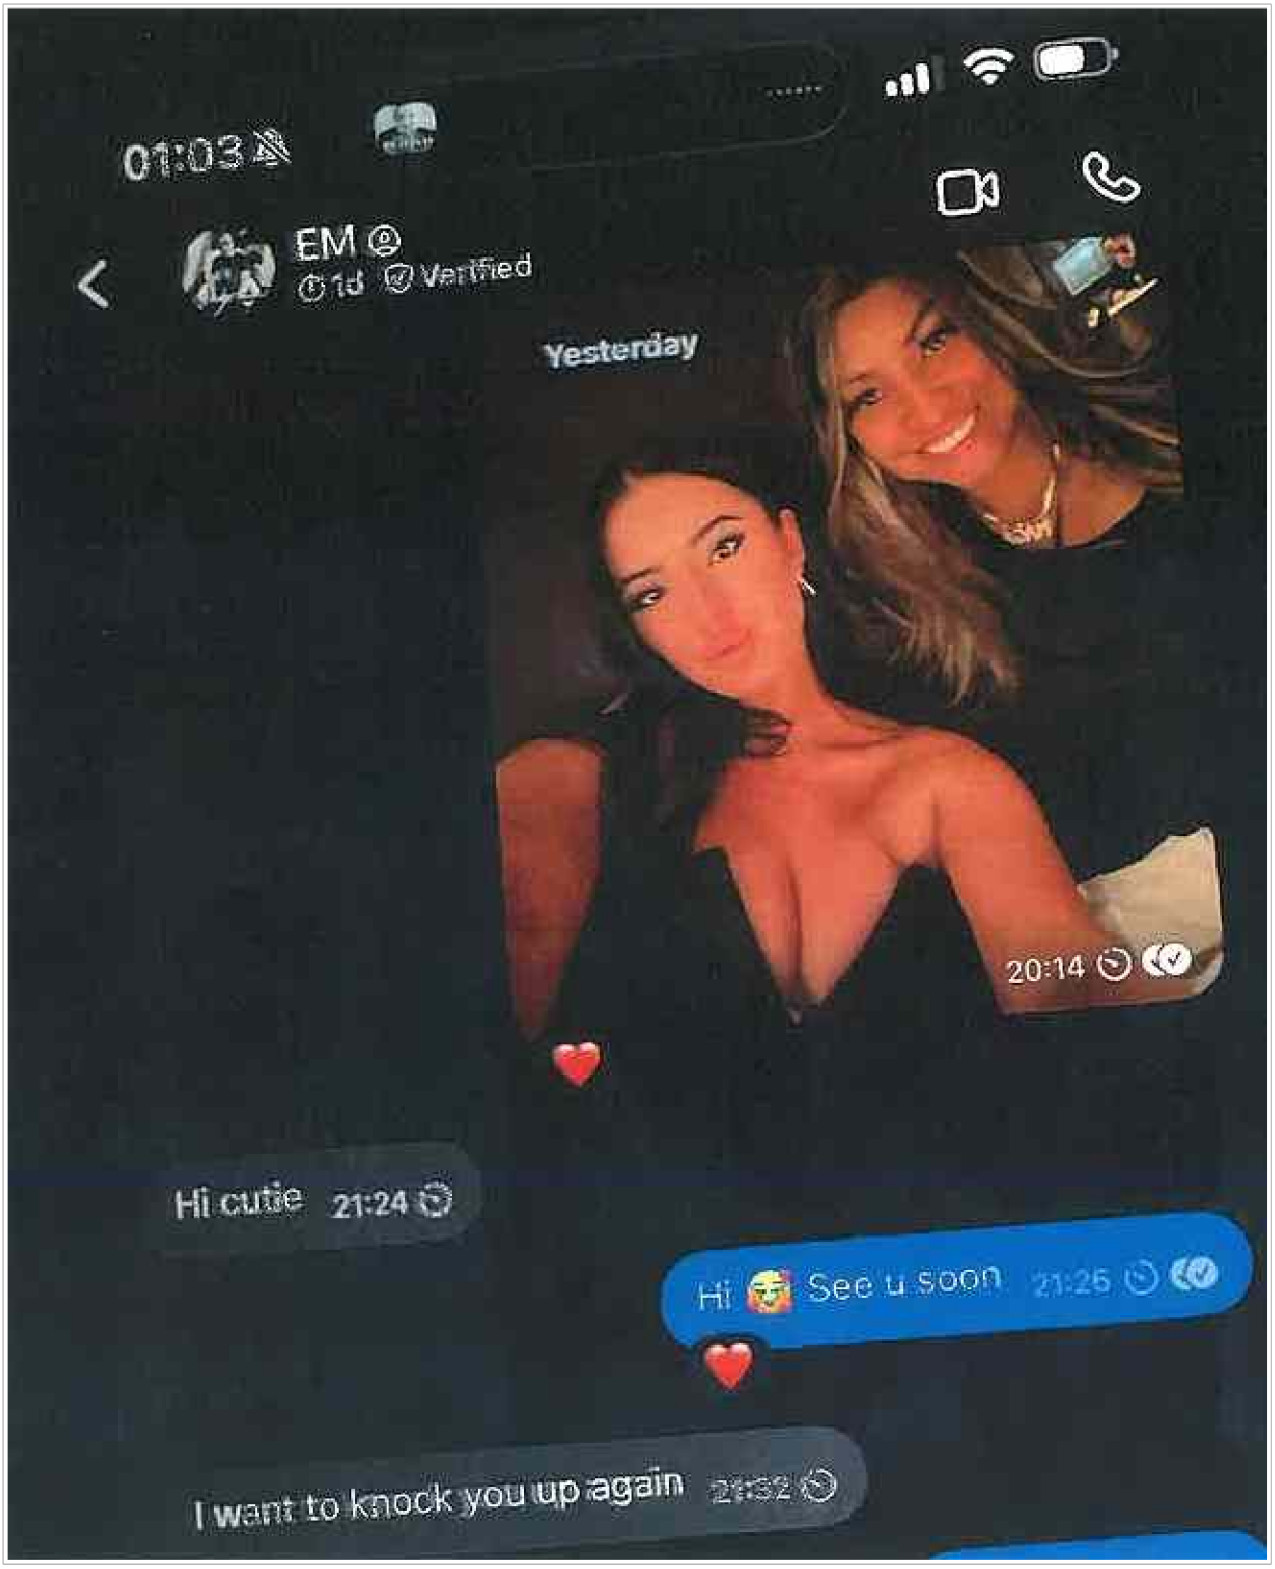

The Space X CEO then continued: 'The threat level will reach insane levels until the election is decided. Loose lips sink ships.'

In another text exchange, St. Clair said she felt their relationship 'broke down' when Musk's fixer and right-hand man Jared Birchall allegedly 'got involved'. She claimed: 'He said a lot of pretty horrible things to me that he attributed to you and I feel as though there was never a rift in our relationship before that.

'If you are in New York or if you'd like me to come to DC I really would appreciate being able to speak to you in person.

'I care about you deeply and feel as though third parties have put a major rift in our relationship that I truly wish was better for the sake of our son.'

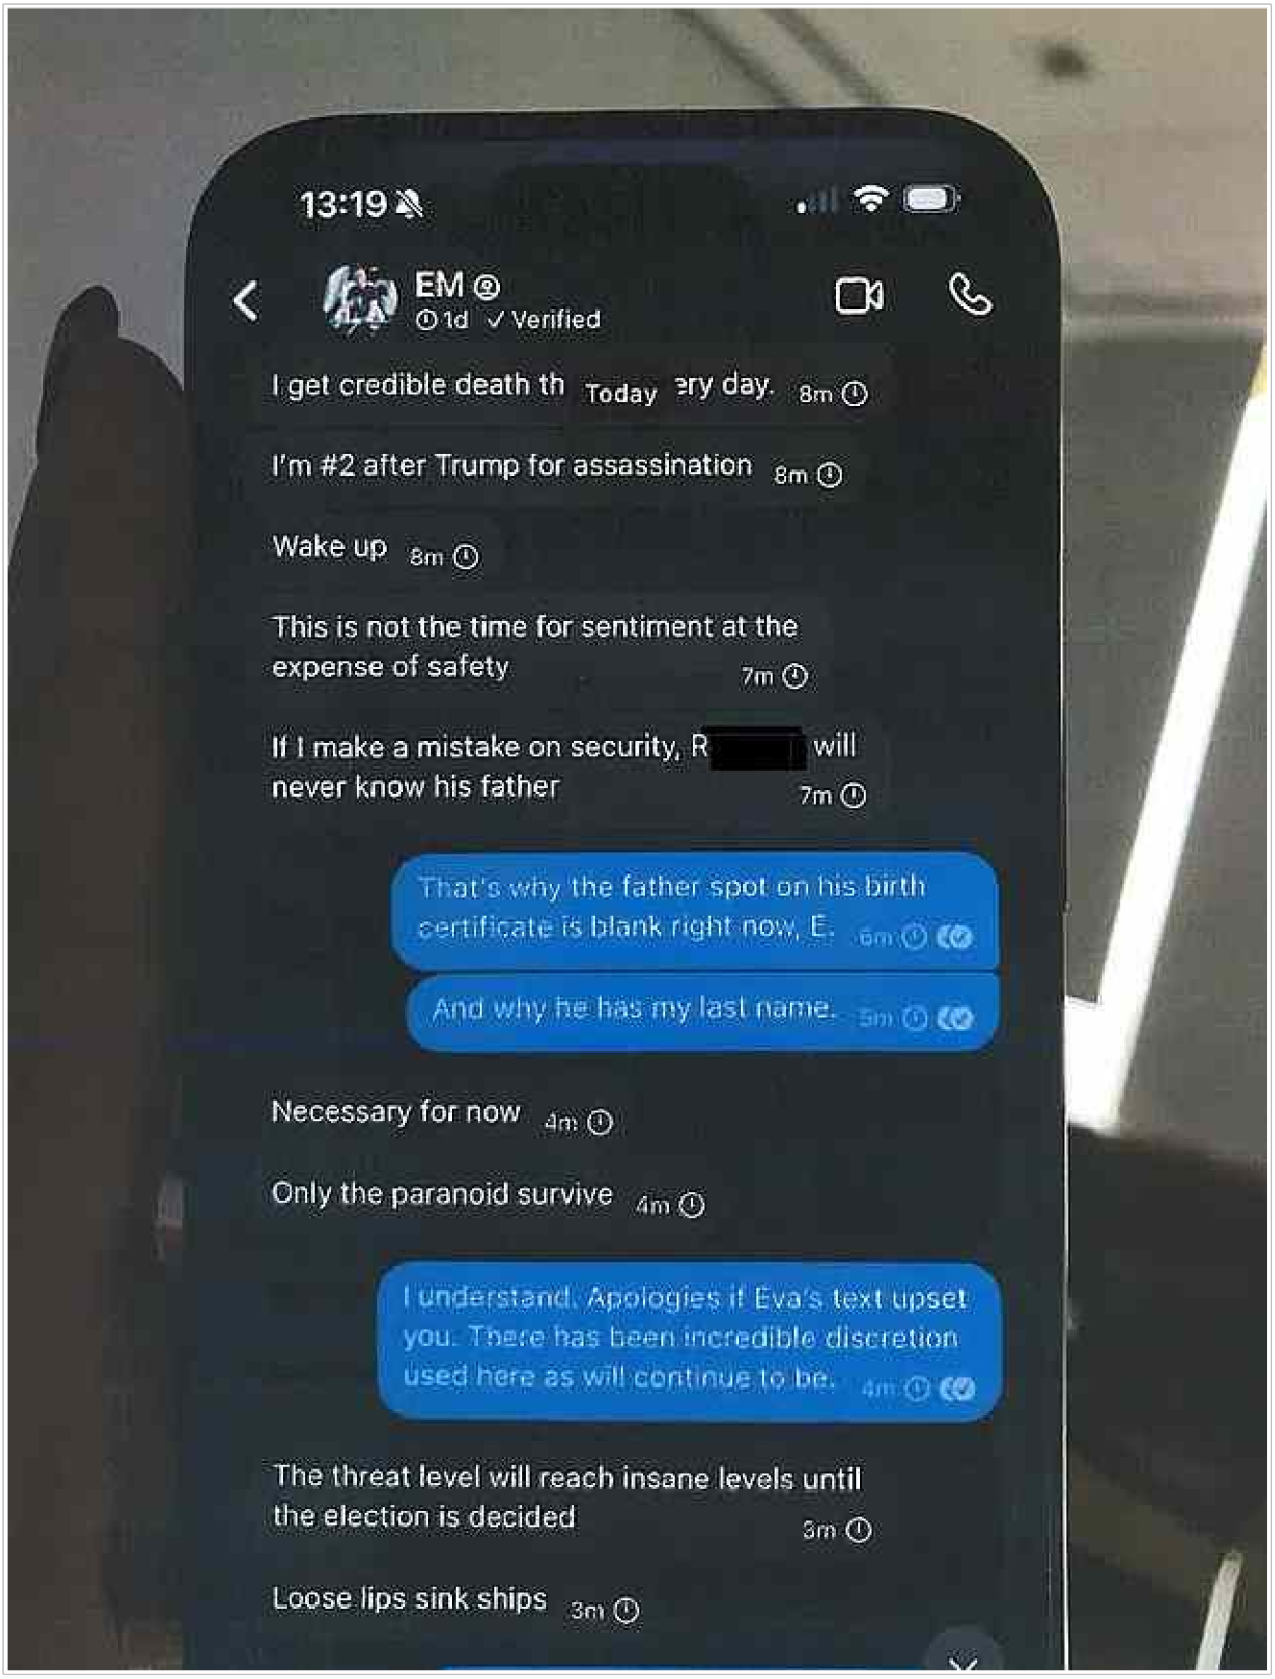

+12

View gallery

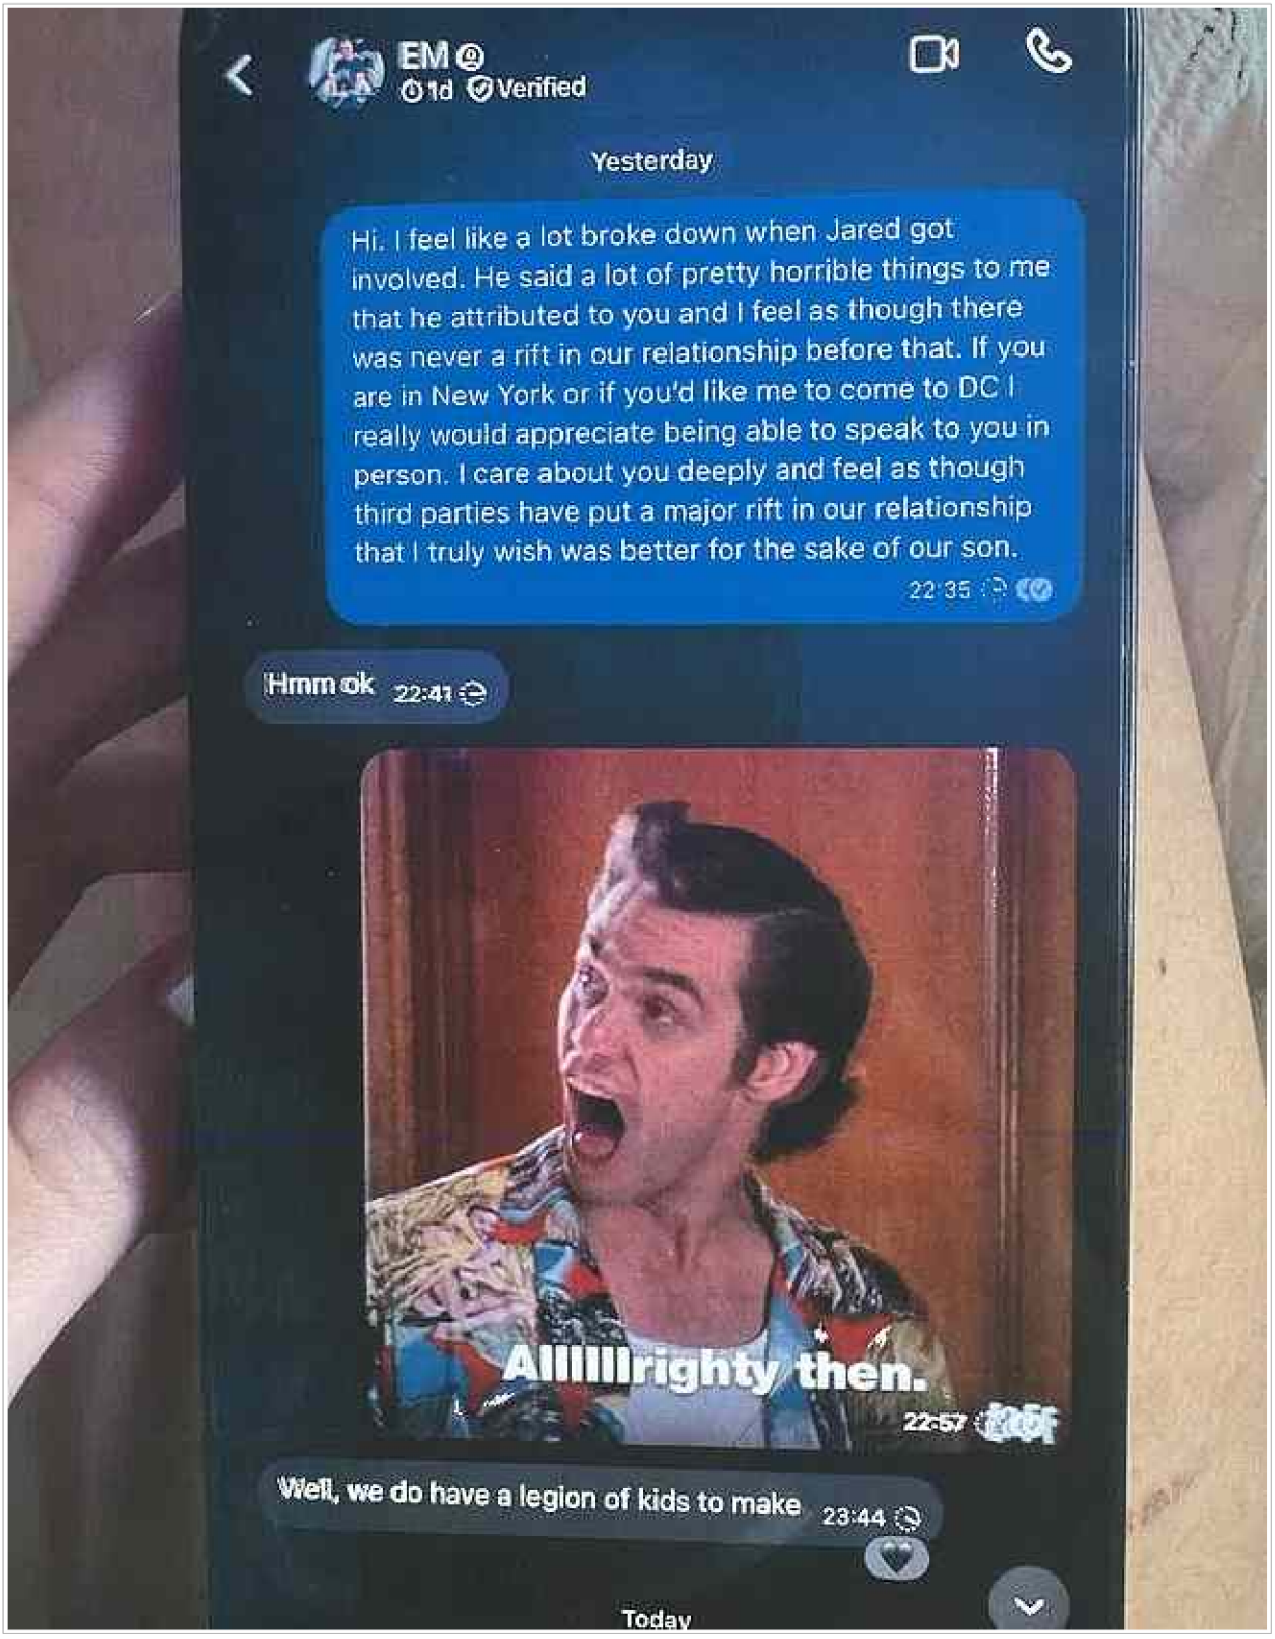

In another, St. Clair has sent him a selfie of herself and a friend, to which Musk replies: 'Hi cutie' before telling her he wanted to 'knock her up again'

+12

View gallery

Other messages show Musk talking about a credible death threat on his life, saying he was '#2 after Trump for assassination'

+12

View gallery

In another text exchange, which is undated, St. Clair says she feels their relationship 'broke down' when Musk's fixer and right hand man Jared Birchall 'got involved'

+12

View gallery

Elon Musk speaks at the Conservative Political Action Conference, CPAC, at the Gaylord National Resort & Convention Center, Thursday, Feb. 20, 2025, in Oxon Hill, Md

Musk responded: 'Hmm ok', to which she replied with a GIF of Jim Carrey's character Ace Ventura saying his trademark phrase 'Alllrighty then'.

To that, he then added: 'Well, we do have a legion of kids to make'.

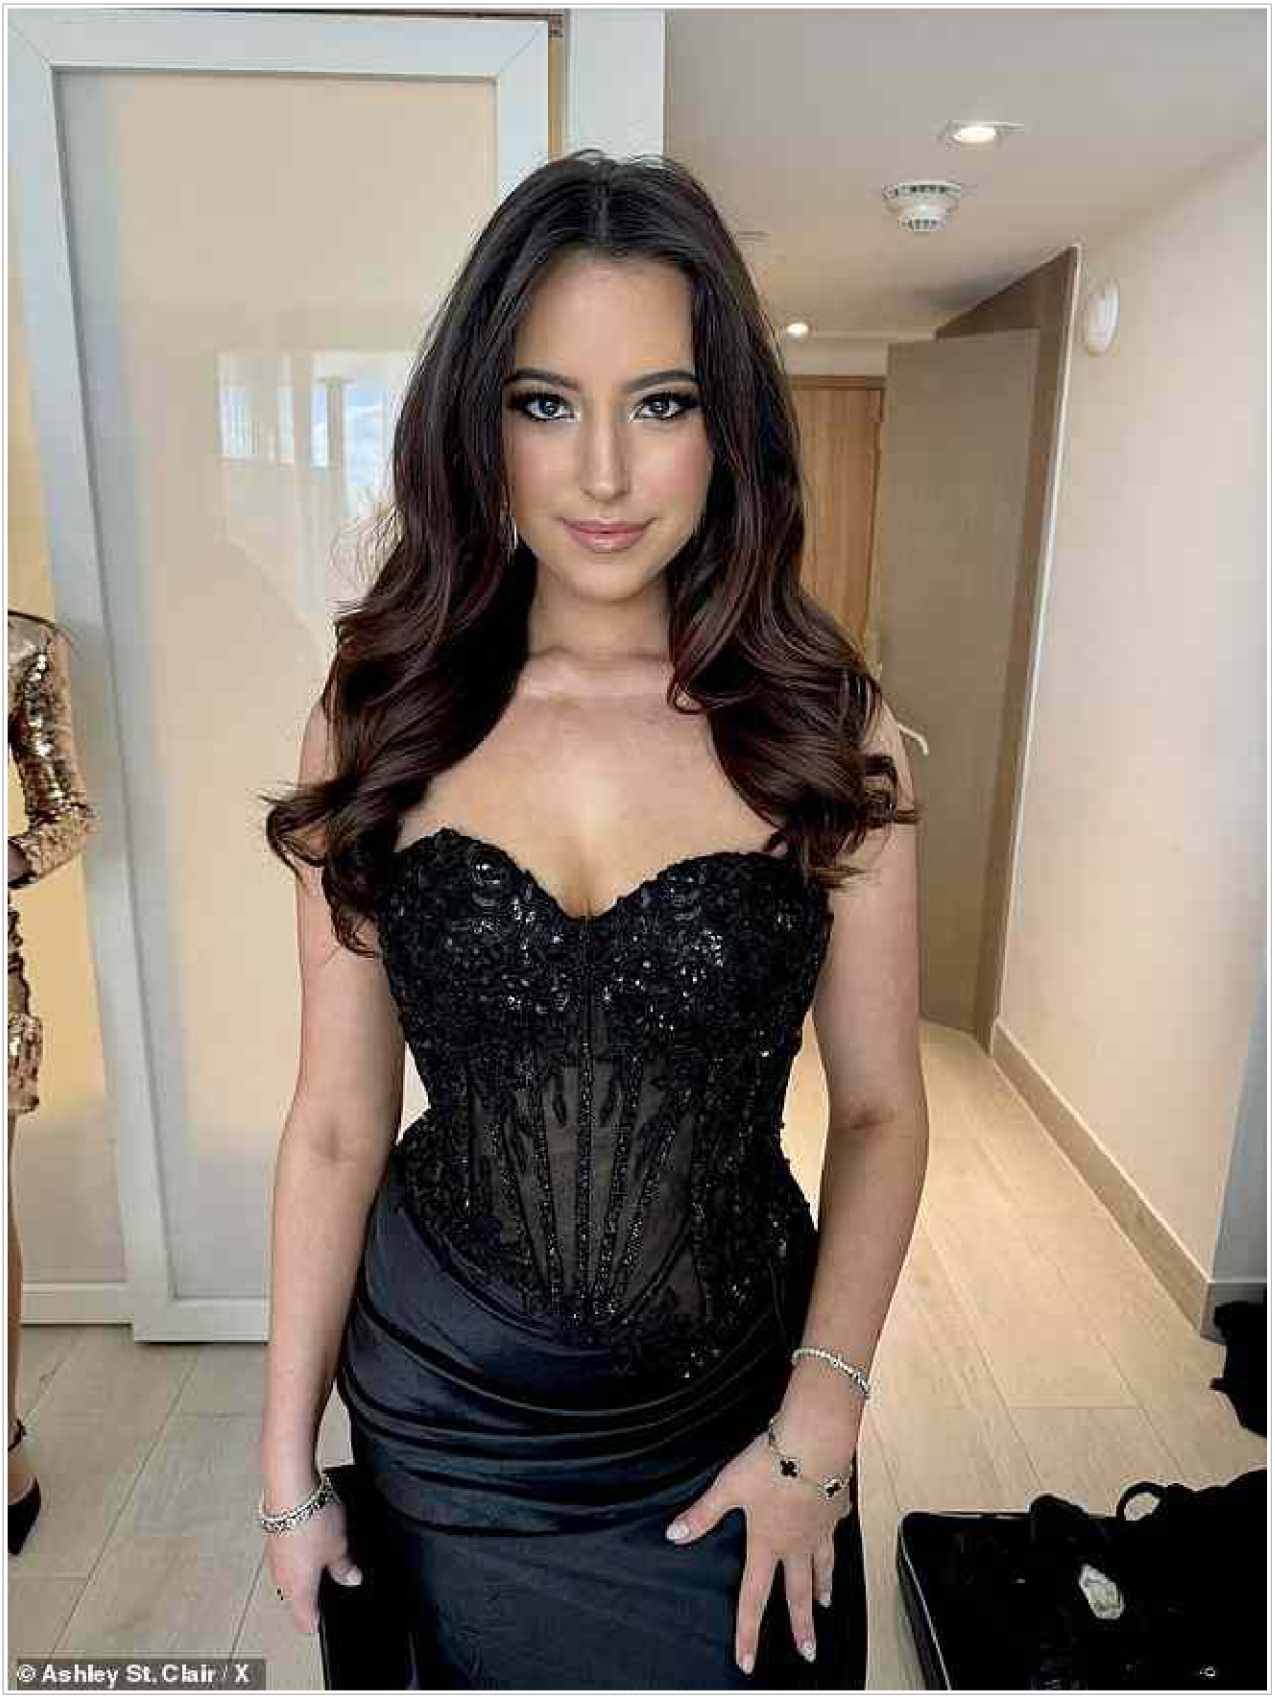

St. Clair claims in her filing that Musk has only met the boy three times and that she is the only parent to make decisions on the child's behalf.

The influencer also alleges that Musk was not present for the birth of their child and hasn't expressed any interest in having custody.
According to the court documents, St. Clair believes the child was conceived on the island of St. Bart's.

Requesting an order for genetic testing, she added: 'I am not currently married to Respondent or any other person.

'I did not have sexual intercourse with any other male during the time the child was conceived.

'I am requesting an order for genetic testing to determine the paternity of the child.'

+12

View gallery

According to the court documents, St Clair says she believes child was conceived on the island of St. Barts

+12

View gallery

In her custody suit, St. Clair writes that it is in the best interests of the child that she have sole legal and physical custody

In her custody suit, St. Clair writes that it is in the best interests of the child that she have sole legal and physical custody.

She claims that the Musk first met the boy on September 21, 2024, in New York City, where she resides, for two hours.
The three are then said to have spent one hour together the following day, followed by a trip to Austin, Texas, in which he met the boy for 30 minutes.

She announced the baby in a post on the evening of Valentine's Day, saying: 'Five months ago, I welcomed a new baby into the world. Elon Musk is the father.
'I have not previously disclosed this to protect our child's privacy and safety, but in recent days it has become clear that tabloid media intends to do so, regardless of the harm it will cause.

'I intend to allow our child to grow in a normal and safe environment. For that reason, I ask that the media honor our child's privacy, and refrain from invasive reporting.'

Soon after the announcement, Musk penned a cryptic post to X in reply to a fan who said making 'another baby' was yet another of Musk's 'side quests'. Musk reacted with crying laughing emoji.
DailyMail.com revealed that St. Clair moved about a year ago into a swanky Manhattan apartment near City Hall, costing around $12,000 to $15,000 per month.

+12

View gallery

The new child with conservative influencer Ashley St. Clair would extend Musk's brood to 13

+12

View gallery

Musk exits a meeting with Indian Prime Minister Modi in Blair House, with his three children with three of his children - Strider, X and Azure

St. Clair said Musk first 'slid into my DMs' in May 2023, and that she met him at an interview he did that month with her then-boss Seth Dillon, CEO of right-leaning satirical news site Babylon Bee in San Francisco.

In an interview with the New York Post the day after she went public about her baby, St. Clair said Musk followed up his meeting with her in San Francisco with an invite to join him on an impromptu trip to Providence, Rhode Island.

'After the interview, I got a text from him saying, 'Feel like going to Providence [Rhode Island] tonight?' she told the Post.
The DailyMail.com had been investigating claims that the two were in a romantic relationship, weeks before St. Clair publicly claimed she had Musk's baby.
Musk has always wanted to have a large family and he once claimed that 'civilization is going to crumble' if people don't have more children.
So far, the 53-year-old billionaire has fathered 12 kids with three different women. His latest with St. Clair would be his 13th.

Musk did not immediately respond to the DailyMail.com's request for comment through his Tesla public relations email.